RAILWAY FLYING.—Forty-five miles to hour is the contract time for carrying mail by the English post railway, and rarely is it exceeded. It has been recently ordered. A small London paper gives an account of express trains, rapidly on the railway, which seems to make us almost realize the idea of Puck—"I'll put a girdle round about the earth in forty minutes." The road was the London and the North-western Railway—and a special train, consisting of four carriages, and from London to Birmingham in twelve hours and thirty minutes. The actual time of travel did not exceed two hours, being an average of fifty-six miles per hour. The train being stopped four times on the journey, to allow other trains to pass, before stopping at Wolverton to change engines. The latter part of the journey, however, was performed in twenty minutes. The maximum speed for upward of a mile was seventy-five miles per hour.

SNOW DRIFTS IN MAY.—A letter from Temple, forty miles from here, of May 12, says that while going to mill Mr. J. H. Davis sounded in snow-drifts twice, so as to make it necessary to take him from the horses to his hut.

DEFINED AT LAST.—An Indian was questioned what is original sin? He replied "The Devil."

IT IS STATED IN THE WILMINGTON DOL.—Papers that Ann Marie, the little girl who was victimized of larceny and sentenced to receive twenty-one years in the state house well laid out," by the Court of General Sessions of the Peace now sitting at Newcastle, Delaware.
